1966, NEW YORK.
TIME LOOP: +1 HOUR.
I don't remember what heaven was like...
...but I know what life is like.
Life is dancing.

I knew since I danced with my first mamãe and my sisters.
Alive and together, together and alive.
As I travelled, I danced with all my Families.
I danced in Seoul, in Paris, in Delhi, in Manila, in Rio, everywhere.
As places and times changed, the music changed its steps, and me with it.
I love it as I love you.
I danced with as many of you as I could. Until 1969.
After that, I danced alone.
In 1989, I tried again.
It was a mistake.
It's 1966 again, and I dance again.
It's a mistake, but the mistakes behind me and ahead of them are so large, it doesn't matter.
I know.

They all die.
Every single one of them.
No one dancing with their mamãe, no dancing with anyone...
...and I carry on, my feet caked with a dead world's ash.
Unless I save you all.
I have abandoned heaven, to ensure you all get to dance.

Valentina...
Talk to me.
Please.
...Read me, Etienne.
